

Mode of Attendance: Day (Public) | Duration: 1 Day

This course is aimed at plumbers and associated trades who are involved with the installation, design or specification of water systems or with buildings containing water systems.

The course will introduce the water regulations and provide the training required to prove competency with the Water Supply (Water Fittings) Regulations 1999. The regulations will only apply to water supplied by the local authority in Scotland. Successful candidates will receive BPEC Certification and an Identification Card.

Course Outline:

- > Water Byelaws
- > Fault Recognition Exercises
- > Written Exercises
- > Training Package and Video to be Issued 4 Weeks Prior to Course (6 ½ Hours Self-Study)

Target Audience: This course is aimed primarily at practising plumbers although it will be useful to water inspectors and anyone who is involved with the installation, design or specification of water systems or with buildings containing water systems.

Entrance Criteria: Applicants must be employed within the water industry.

FURTHER STUDY OPPORTUNITIES

Candidates may also be interested in other short courses offered by Forth Valley College.

BENEFITS TO THE ORGANISATION

Obtaining certification will allow organisations to tender for plumbing related installations such as renovation work, commercial and industrial contracts and maintenance work.

BENEFITS TO THE INDIVIDUAL

The course will ensure candidates have a good awareness of Water Byelaws in Scotland and they will be able to apply this knowledge to their everyday work.
